JOHN B. DRYDEN, SR.,

Friend and Comrade, Answers the Last Call.

On Sunday morning at 9:08 o'clock, Mr. John B. Dryden, Sr., our boyhood friend and companion, answered the last summons, after as brave a fight as we ever saw, lasting for over eight long months.

John B. Dryden was the son of the late, Mr. James H. Dryden and wife, and was born and raised in this city, although he lived for a time, with his parents, in Warsaw, Ky., Louisville, Ky., and in Indiana. He was 63 years old in January last.

He learned the printing business when a lad in the old Yeoman office, then owned by the late Col. S. I. M. Major.

At the commencement of the civil war, he enlisted in the company of Capt. Jas. R. Page, in the 9th Kentucky Cavalry, U. S. A., commanded by Col. R. T. Jacob, and made a brave soldier, being promoted to Commissary Sergeant. After the regiment was mustered out Mr. Dryden was employed in the Adjutant General's department as a commissary sergeant. He filled every position he occupied with efficiency and fidelity.

In young manhood he was married to Miss Catherine Banta, daughter of the late Mr. H. G. Banta, and they have lived a congenial and happy life—devoted to each other, in sunshine and in storm.

To them were given eleven children—five sons and six daughters—of whom four sons (Jas. H., John B., Jr., Edwin M., and Pruet B. Dryden) and three daughters (Mrs. E. Church Tinsley, Mrs. Ross A. McCallum and Miss Ida Dryden) survive him, together with his devoted wife.

After engaging in one or two other enterprises, he finally returned to his first love and began the publication of a daily newspaper in this city, in conjunction with others. Finding business with partners not according to his taste, he sold out. After a few months he returned to the business and issued the Sunday Call, which ran a short while as a weekly, but was soon enlarged to an afternoon daily, and which he has continued for over sixteen years.

We were his companion and friend in boyhood and have always been together as friends from that day to the sad hour when he laid down life's burden.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, and the funeral services were conducted from that church, on Tuesday afternoon, by Rev. J. O. A. Vaught, of the Methodist Church. His brethren of the Grand Army of the Republic and of the B. P. O. Elks attended the services in a body.

The services at the grave, in our cemetery, were conducted by Mr. Chas. Clingman, of the Episcopal Church.

In February last Mr. Dryden was commissioned as Aide-de-Camp, by Grand Commander-in-Chief James Tanner, with the rank of Colonel on his staff, of the Grand Army of the Republic.

A braver, truer friend than John B. Dryden never lived in Frankfort.

Farewell! Old Comrade! Brother! Friend! May your rest be sweet. We hope to strike hands again on the other shore.

IN MEMORIAM.

The lighting of the thistle-down upon the meadow is not more gentle than was the release of the spirit from its environment of clay, when the final summons called John B. Dryden to the better land. Amid the touching and constant vigil of relatives and the ministrations and sympathy of friends, the brave battle that had lasted for months ended, as ends the parting summer day, in peace and rest.

Years of business association and of later companionship, brings to the writer memories that evoke fruitful testimony of sterling qualities that were reflected in his life and character of John B. Dryden in conspicuous strength and power. Always responsive to the call of duty, always foremost in works of progressive citizenship, kindly and liberal in ministrations among the needy, and buoyant and bright in the social circles of everyday life, and exemplary in the affection and devotion he always manifested towards his friends and his family, there was not a day nor an hour that did not end better by his having lived in them.

His friends were legion; his purposes were for human betterment; the genial, habitual sunshine of his nature created brightness and warmth—there was nothing sordid or narrow in his disposition—his ways were ways of peace and kindness, and his death is deeply lamented by all who knew him. S.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

The following resolutions were adopted by the letter carriers of this city:

Whereas, The Almighty, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to call to His eternal home our beloved brother, Owen M. Furr; and,

Whereas, We recognize that, in his sudden and unexpected death, Branch No. 310, has lost an honest and faithful member, his family a loving and faithful son and brother; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Branch, in meeting assembled, extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in this their time of deep sorrow; and, be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family, that they be spread upon the minutes of this Branch and be published in the Frankfort papers.

TOBACCO EXHIBIT.

A feature of the Big Bluegrass Fair, to be held at Lexington the week of September 17 to 22, will be the tobacco exhibit. Larger premiums are offered for this department than were ever before offered for an exhibition of tobacco at a State, county or district fair. It is possible for one grower to take $200 in first premiums alone. There is no entrance fee and the smallest exhibitor is on equal footing with the largest. Mr. Joseph Walton, an experienced farmer and tobacco man, is the director in charge of this department. Any information desired can be had by correspondence with him. The premiums offered will be of Red Leaf, Bright Leaf, Cigarette Wrapper, Bright Trash and four samples from a single Burley crop embracing these several classifications.
